10. STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Tukurua has cultural heritage significance for the following:

  - the building is a prominent landmark in the Cottesloe area;
  - the place contributes an important element to the streetscape and, as part of the wider Cottesloe precinct, an important element of the gracious old residential building stock for which the suburb is renowned;

the building is important for its close association with Septimus Burt, a man who contributed significantly to the development of Western Australia in the late nineteenth century; and, the place is distinctive in representing a type of large, limestone seaside residence in large grounds built by wealthy families in Western Australia at the turn-of-the-century, and which were once common in Cottesloe.
