10. STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Uniting Church, Katanning, a brick church with a corrugated iron roof designed in the Federation Gothic style, completed 1906, has cultural heritage significance for the following reasons:

the place is a rare example in Western Australia of a church in Federation Gothic style, with its substantial crenellated tower and tall zinc-clad spire the only such known example; the crenellated tower, tall zinc-clad spire and large three-lancet window with quatrefoil and flanking trefoils are unusual features that make the place a distinctive landmark, enhanced by the clear view lines afforded to the building by the railway reserve; the church exemplifies the design skill of its well known architect, F.W. Burwell, the expertise of its builder, Alexander Thomson (later MLA and MLC), and the skill of plumber Charles Mitchell in construction of the spire;

the church is one of a number of substantial Federation period buildings in Katanning, which give the town its unique character, and is part of a precinct of complementary heritage buildings in close proximity to the town centre; and the place is highly valued by the community of Katanning and the Great Southern Region for social, religious, spiritual and aesthetic reasons.

The jarrah timber weatherboard extension, built as the Vestry and Schoolroom in 1920, has minimal significance. The jarrah timber weatherboard and cement sheet hall of 1956, directly to the rear of the church, has little significance. The red brick hall, kitchen and entrance patio on the east corner is considered intrusive.
